ABSTRACT

Curiosity can be defined as an important and potential motivator that facilitates human exploratory behaviours and plays an important role in motivating learning (Berlyne, 1954). Therefore, curiosity has been regarded as a key intrinsic motivational drive for facilitating human exploratory behaviours in many domains, such as psychology, education, and sport (Park, Mahony, & Greenwell, 2010). Furthermore, curiosity has been found to be one of the crucial motivators that initially influences human exploratory behaviours in many domains (Park, Mahony, & Yu Kyoum, 2011). Nevertheless, there have been evidently few empirical studies being conducted in exploring the fan curiosity in novel sport. This study attempts to determine the factors of fan curiosity, with two additional variables (attachment and allegiance) in order to have better examination on the curiosity construction in a football setting. Thus, a measurement model that consists of Sport Fan Exploratory Curiosity Scale (SFECS), Sport Fan Specific Curiosity Scale (SFSCS), attachment and allegiance, was developed and tested in this study. Some hypotheses are put forward and tested in a causal-comparative study. To carry out this study, 382 of Harimau Malaya football fans were surveyed during the AFF Suzuki Cup 2013 at the National Stadium Bukit Jalil. The data was collected using the event sampling method and structural equation modelling (SEM) was applied for data analyses and confirmatory factor analysis (CFA) were performed to reliable and validate the questionnaire. For the measurement model, the result showed good model fit, $\chi^2 (16) = 52.160$, $p < 0.001$, RMSEA = 0.077, and CFI = 0.983. Result from hypothesis testing proved that the attachment was found as a mediator to the relationship between curiosity and allegiance towards sport fans attendance at the stadium. The further findings offer important elements to sport marketers in order to maintain the crowd of sports fans toward consuming in attending matches at the stadium.
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First of all, I’m grateful to Allah the Almighty, for the wonderful life given to me and allowing me to complete this journey. Thank to Allah s.w.t for the air I breathe, the food I ate, the love that I am thankful for and the Iman that I always seek out.

Secondly, I would like to say thank you to my supervisor, Dr. Rezianna Mohamed Kassim, for her caring, loving, understanding, valuable comments, thought, wisdom and for her assistance throughout my great time in completing this study.

Special thanks to Mdm. Wahidah Tumijan, my co-supervisor for her time, patience and guidance too. Not to forget, thank you to all the lecturers at the Faculty of Sport Sciences and Recreation, UiTM especially to Dr. Nadiyah Diyana Tan Abdullah and Mdm. Norlizah Abdul Hamid for their helpful advice and comments. Not to forget, my thought also goes to Datin Dr. Hajah Sarina Md. Yusof who always supports and gives some recommendations for my current study.

My heartfelt thanks also goes to all my family, my mom, my father, my brothers and sisters, and my best friends Miss Sakinah Ismail and Miss Nur Zieta Syaidatul Akma Azizi for their support, motivation, love, laugh, and thought that keep me going every day.

To my colleagues at FSR UiTM, thank you for the friendship, assistance and encouragements. Whenever I needed their help, they were always there to lend a helping hand. I am thankful to my fellow friends (Adzly, Nuraimi, Helmi, Solleh, Wan, Intan, Diyana, Asmidar, Fatehah) for giving me the spiritual and moral support upon completion of this study.

Last but not least, to those who had indirectly contributed in completing this current research, my thanks also goes to them.

Thank you all.
CHAPTER ONE
INTRODUCTION

1.1 INTRODUCTION

Sports considered as one of the most important elements in national development. One of the sports known as football is recognized in many parts of the worlds which is the world’s most popular organized team sport. It was played in every nation without the exception. Today, football remains the fastest growing team sport, and in consequence of its popularity, this sport has attracted many young players all over the world. Football is not only for competition but also important in developing the social relations, setting a goal and mental strength among the team members.

Instead of the team members, this sport also encourages the sport fans to support the team, players and game from time to time. In order to maintain the interest of sport fans, many organizations with support by the government need to plan or do something in order to maintain this sports fan.

The sport of football in Malaysia is run by the Football Association of Malaysia (FAM). This association administers the national league as well as the national football team that also known as Harimau Malaya among football fans.

1.2 BACKGROUND OF THE STUDY

The impact of sports, particularly in football, on society and the world economy is really immense. The game of football has potential to create a broad economic impact. Football also games that involves a lot of strategy and creative thinker for the team and therefore require a lot of development in skills, attitude and proficiency. It is played and watched throughout every part of the world.

From the statement above, the sport marketers should play their role in order to attract the sport fans to attend and watch the game (Bee & Havitz, 2010). The factors of
