

V-Rolusi is more than architecture, it is a transformative space that was designed for parkour community. This projects aims to "Rejuvenate" and "Rebrand" the community about the parkour sport in Malaysia. The building also encourages people to be creative in order to make their own movement so that it can give the feeling of freedom. The contrasity of the materials between concrete wall and wooden facade give plays an important role in order to symbolize the boldness of parkour sports. this approach not only give the form and materials in tension but also create a dramatic effect for the visitors with the extruded triangle forms.
