The Glory Of Freedom

At the dawn of history,
Colonialism was far away, and the sky was as dark as ink,
But there was a light, burning from the bottom of my heart,
That was freedom, that was the flame of hope, illuminating every corner.
No matter the color of our skin, no matter the language difference,
We drink the water of this land together,
Breathe the breeze of this sky together,
Feel the pulse of rising together, beating in every heart.
The ancient walls once separated the ravines,
The racial boundaries were like invisible shackles,
But we held hands and smashed the barriers,
Write a new chapter with love and faith.
The wind blows from the east to the west,
The sun shines on every piece of land,
Here is our home,
No matter where you and I come from,
The common future is setting sail against the wind.
Although the languages are different, the voices are the same,
Although the cultures are diverse, the faith is eternal,
Our strength lies in unity,
Our future is prosperous because of harmony.
Every brick bears witness to our blood and sweat,
Every rainbow reflects our dreams,
On this fertile land of freedom,
We stand, proud and firm.
Today, we are no longer divided,
Racial differences have become echoes of the past,
The national flag flies high under the blue sky,
It is our common symbol,
It is a symbol of unity, courage and peace.
Beyond the gap of language,
Beyond the difference of skin color,
On this land, we are one,
Work together to build a brilliant tomorrow.
The bell of freedom rings through the valley,
The dove of peace flies across the sky,
We are the symbol of independence and the beacon of hope,
On this land, light and future coexist.
