The School of Information Science, UiTM Kedah, in collaboration with Universitas Negeri Malang (UM), Indonesia, successfully organized the Program Mahabbah Ilmu Antarabangsa. This initiative aimed to foster academic collaboration, enhance knowledge sharing, and strengthen cultural ties between the two institutions, providing a platform for students and educators to engage in meaningful exchanges and learning experiences. On 27 October 2024, one collaborative workshop titled "Implementasi Software Open Source untuk Otomasi Perpustakaan: Dari Teori ke Praktek" was conducted in partnership with Universitas Negeri Malang, Indonesia. The event aimed to introduce Information Science students to the use of open-source software for library automation, enhancing their technical skills and practical knowledge in modern library management. Guided by En. Moh Safi, an expert in digital libraries and automation, the workshop provided hands-on training and theoretical insights into cost-effective, open-source technologies. With more than 30 students participating, the program emphasized the benefits of open-source solutions for improving library operations, fostering interactive learning, and preparing students for real-world challenges in the field.

Another session on Information Literacy was also successfully conducted on 27 October 2024 at Dewan Perdana, UiTM Kedah Branch. This event featured Puan Amalia Nurma Dewi, a lecturer from the Department of Library Science, Faculty of Arts, Universitas Negeri Malang (UM), Indonesia, as the guest speaker.

The program aimed to enhance students' understanding of information literacy, a critical skill in the evolving landscape of information management and science. Puan Amalia shared her expertise, covering key aspects of information evaluation, ethical use of information, and strategies for effectively accessing and applying information resources. The session was attended by Information Science students, faculty members, and other participants, creating a vibrant platform for knowledge exchange. Feedback from attendees highlighted the practical insights and engaging delivery by the speaker, which significantly enriched their learning experience.
