CONCLUSION

The three months of my industrial training had taught me that the real job life is far away different from student's life. We have been exposed to a lot of things that we never being taught in class. The environment also differs. Communication is the most important thing as it will help us to reach that understanding between the members. The good relationships and bonding between the staffs and me make me feels like I'm home because of their warm welcome. Lastly, thank you again for the knowledge that they gave to me. To those who involve either directly or indirectly, your support is much appreciated. Thank you
