Dyslexia-friendly Illustration Storybook

This project aims to design a dyslexia friendly illustrated storybook for Malaysian children aged 4–6. The study explores how visual elements such as illustration style, typography, colour and layout can improve reading comfort and engagement for children with dyslexia.

It also considers parents as the primary decision-makers when selecting books, addressing the challenge of finding suitable reading materials.Using a mixed-method approach that includes surveys, visual analysis and literature review, the research identifies effective design strategies for young readers. The final outcome is a cute and minimal storybook that supports early literacy, inclusive learning and positive reading habits among children.
