Bismillahirrahmanirrahim

In the name of ALLAH S.W.T

Firstly, we would like to express our gratitude to ALLAH S.W.T for His graciousness in giving a chance for our group to complete this project paper on a scheduled time. The completion of this project paper is through relentless cooperation of several persons in giving our group guidance. A special acknowledgement goes to our supervisor, Pn Siti Sarah Sulaiman for the non stop guidance and all the suggestive and constructive criticism in shaping the form and content of this study. She has given our group several brilliant ideas that have opened up our minds as needed to prepare this project paper. Her advice and willingness to help and to share her beautiful piece of mind had really helped us in completing this task. Without her endless advice and support, we cannot complete this project paper successfully. Secondly, our sincere appreciation to our parents for their continuous support, especially in terms of financially aid. For without them, it is almost impossible for us to put this project into existence as the cost of printing the papers and searching for the information had burdened us a lot. Eventually, we would love to convey our utmost appreciation to all of our friends for their kindness to lend a helping hand when we needed it most. Their contribution towards the accomplishment of this project is undeniably important and for once, the proverbs 'A friend in need, is a friend indeed' is proven.

ABSTRACT

Due to the increasing numbers of population and changes of environment, people are more exposed towards certain diseases. Through this exposure, it will surely affect the duty of a doctor by which the numbers of patients will growth instantly. With the numbers of doctors that we have in our country nowadays, it is impossible for the doctors to fully utilize the needs of a patient without having delegates their duties to another staffs. The delegation of the work normally been carried out by the nurses, pharmacist and other person related to that profession. However, through this delegation, it can make the doctors be sued by the patients if any negligent act committed by the other staffs other than the doctors' own act. This is because, patients will straightly proceed to sue the doctors without having notice that the act committed was not the doctor's fault and the presumption is that the doctors should be fully responsible for whatever happened to them. Thus, through this project paper, we will discuss the duty of doctors and each staffs and their liabilities. As a result, people will be aware about the existence of duty of staffs apart from doctor's duty. Therefore, this project paper had suggested certain recommendations as a solution in order to ensure that the doctors are not fully liable for the negligent act committed by the other staffs.
