ABSTRACT

The purpose of the research is to see the performance of sharia stock performance and the relationship of the financial ratio and the stock return that will be known as the performance. The performance we be defined using six ratio that is commonly use as the fundamental analysis in the market. The ratio are earnings per share (EPS), price earnings ratio (PER), net profit margin (NPM), return on equity (ROE), price to book value (PBV) and debt equity ratio (DER). From this ratio that will be collected from bursa Malaysia and only 30 sharia stock will be randomly pick as a sample from three sector that is consumer, technology and industrial sector. The data will be used is from 2014 until 2017 because at this time the sharia index are increasing so it is suitable to conduct the research at those time.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Firstly, I wish to thank God for giving me the opportunity to embark on my bachelor in business administration and for completing this long and challenging journey successfully. My gratitude and thanks go to my advisor madam Shahirah Binti Abdul Jabar who never give up on helping me, guide me, and not to forget her effort on teaching me through this final year project paper.

My appreciation goes to the UiTM Segamat library staff who helped me in finding my data in the Eikon Thompson and not to forget to my friend who guide and accompany me to find the data. Me and my friend go through the hardship together in finishing this final year project paper most importantly we have fun while doing the project paper at the restaurant called Al Majunas at Setapak.

Finally, not to forget my beloved parents who never stop to support and encourage me to finish this project paper and also my bachelor in business administration. My siblings also help me and game me morale support because I almost want to give up on doing this project paper.
