ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

We would like to express our sincere gratitude and respect to Assoc. Prof. Ramlah binti Md. Noh for her guidance and consultation during our research on Legal Studies on Illegal Sand Mining in Selangor. We would like to extend our gratitude to Puan Rahilah binti Rahmat, a Principal of Assistants Director of Pejabat Tanah dan Galian Selangor (PTGS) for assistance in our project.

Thanks are due to Cik Salwati Binti Umar, a Prosecution/Legal Officer of PTGS for research support and cooperation in assisting our completion of the research work. We would like to express our thanks to Assoc. Prof. Norha Abu Hanifah and Dr. Nuraisyah Chua Abdullah for their support and comments during our completion on our proposal project paper last semester.

Our very personal gratitude and love are expressed to our families and friends for their love, help and encouragement throughout this semester.

We thank Allah for everything.

ABSTRACT

The issue of Illegal mining of sand and other related issues surrounding it left a bad impression to the reputation of the new administration of the state government of Selangor. However, the local authority including Land Office has never stopped in taking such actions to stop this activity. Due to the existence of certain weakness of enforcement of the law, it creates some difficulties for the authority to take further action.

The National Land Code 1965 (NLC) is the main canon of land law to administer land in Peninsular Malaysia. The main function of the NLC is to provide a practical way of land administration in the country. According to Article 74 of the Federal Constitution, constitutionally land has always been under the jurisdiction of State Governments and all land situated within the respective state boundaries are vested in the state and they therefore have the power to dispose and deal with it.

In response to this problem, we propose to study on the enforcement aspect taken by the respective authorities in Selangor in order to overcome such issue. Apart from that, we also intend to study the provision of the existing by laws which empowered the respective authority to implement and perform their duties.
