ABSTRACT

This paper is to determine the implication of foreign direct investment (FDI) towards two different sectors in Malaysia and also to determine which of these sectors affected more by the FDI. We are focusing on services and agricultural sectors in Malaysia which give so much benefit to country and also the FDI to achieve the objectives of the study. Based on this study, simple-regression analysis had been used to measure the significant of the variables. This study is using the time series data from 1980 to 2010. The methods that we used to examine the aim of this study are Unit Root Test and Ordinary Least Squared (OLS). As conclusion, the result shows that there is a positive relationship of both independent variables with the FDI and the most affected by the FDI was the services sectors.

Keywords: Foreign Direct Investment (FDI), Services Sectors, Agricultural Sectors, Ordinary Least Squared (OLS).

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I am grateful to thanks to Allah S.W.T in giving me strength to completing this thesis on time without many barriers of health and many more. I also heartily thankful to my supervisor, Madam Sumaffiatiee Sulong, whose encouragement, guidance and support from the initial to the final enabled me to develop an understanding of the subject and hopefully can accept my precious work with better mark, and thanks for all the help. Not to forget, thanks to Dr. Imbarine Bujang who guided me to make this research and teach me a lot about Research and Methodology. And also to other supervisors who teach me during this research. It is also a pleasure to thank my family that always pray and wishes for the best to me, and also supporting me in financial and advices. Lastly those who made this thesis possible especially to all my friends that always give different opinion on finishing this thesis. Thank you.
