One Day Course of Mobile Apps Development at Kolej Komuniti Kuala Pilah

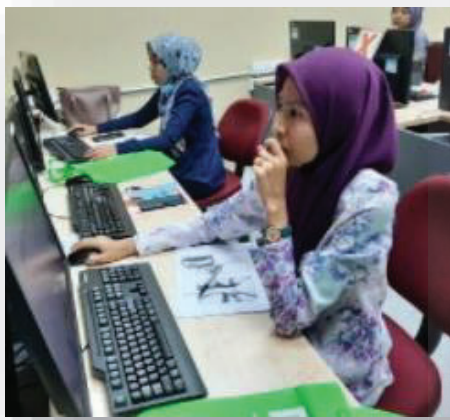

Prepared by Jamaliah Mohd Taib dan Norlida Othman

On 25th March 2021, 14 lecturers from FSKM Kampus Kuala Pilah had attended a one-day course on Mobile Apps Development at Kolej Komuniti Kuala Pilah. The purpose of the course is to develop mobile apps by using Google Sites and Thunkable apps. Thunkable is an app that will enable anyone to create a beautiful and powerful mobile app as simple as doing “drag and drop” actions. The course starts with creating a few web pages using the Google Sites platform and later, linking the web pages to the mobile app created using the Thunkable apps.

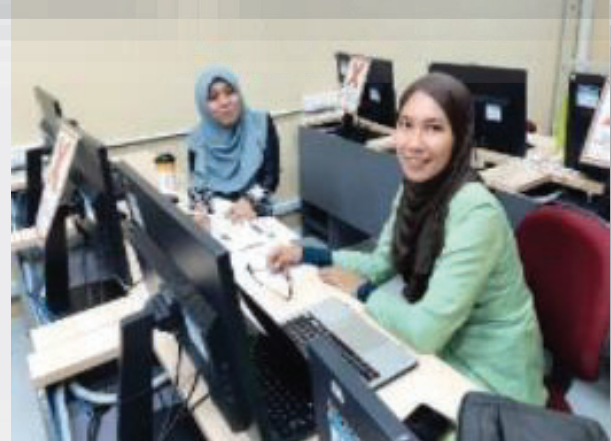

The instructors had wholeheartedly conducted the course as they are also instructors for the mobile development course there. At the same time, they are also developers of some mobile apps currently being used at Kolej Komuniti Kuala Pilah. It was very insightful to be able to learn from experienced instructors. The participants had enjoyed the course since they had the opportunity to create a mobile app with the guidance of the instructors.

This course was a learning process for the participants. Although it was hard to assimilate the whole process for a one-day course, a few FSKM lecturers were able to create simple mobile apps by the end of the session. Later, the participants can practice what they have learned from this course and implement it for their ODL classes. By the end of the course, the knowledge learned can also be shared with colleagues at UiTM Kampus Kuala Pilah.
