ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First and foremost, I am grateful to Allah S.W.T, the almighty for his blessings throughout my journey to complete the research successfully. Praises and thanks to Him for the good health, physically and mentally. I would like to express my sincere gratitude especially to my advisor Sir Mohd Azim bin Sardan for his patience, motivation and continuous support on me in completing this research paper. His supervision helped me a lot in writing this paper as he was also my lecturer for Research Methodology subject during my fifth semester. I am thankful for his valuable guidance and for sharing his expertise in helping me in preparing this study. In addition, i would like to thank Sir Syamsyul bin Samsudin for all his guidance to the completion of this research study.

I would like to extend my appreciation to my family, my parents, my sister, my brother and my friends for supporting me with motivation and help me a lot in finishing this paper and for providing me with necessary facilities.

Lastly, I would like to thank everyone who directly or indirectly helped me and supported me throughout this journey in partial fulfilment of the requirement for this course.

Thank you.

ABSTRACT

This study investigates the factors affecting house prices in Malaysia over a period of 8 years. The data collected are based on quarterly data from 2005:Q1 to 2012:Q4. In order to identify what causes the changes in house prices, this study focuses on four variables including gross domestic product, lending rate, unemployment and inflation rate to study the impact of these variables on house prices. In further, this paper is specifically done on terraced houses in Malaysia where the target is on the middle income group of population in which average terraced house price is used as the dependent variable. Income is expected to be one of the most significant factors affecting the changes in house price since income is one of the most important component of investment as well as a source of wealth. In general, residential property has important impact on household consumption behavior. Throughout this study, possible causality is hope to be identified between the independent variable and the dependent variables.
