EDITOR'S NOTE

Assalamua'laikum & salam UiTM Di Hatiku

The fifth edition is here. For this piece of publication, I would like to thank Associate Professor Dr Soo Kum Yoke and Puan Nur Faathinah for entrusting their faith in my ability to produce the next version for APB's E-Bulletin.

In this particular edition, I have included the events which were organized by my dear APB colleagues, reports on APB Rembau's submission for proceedings and academic articles, as well as accolades acquired.

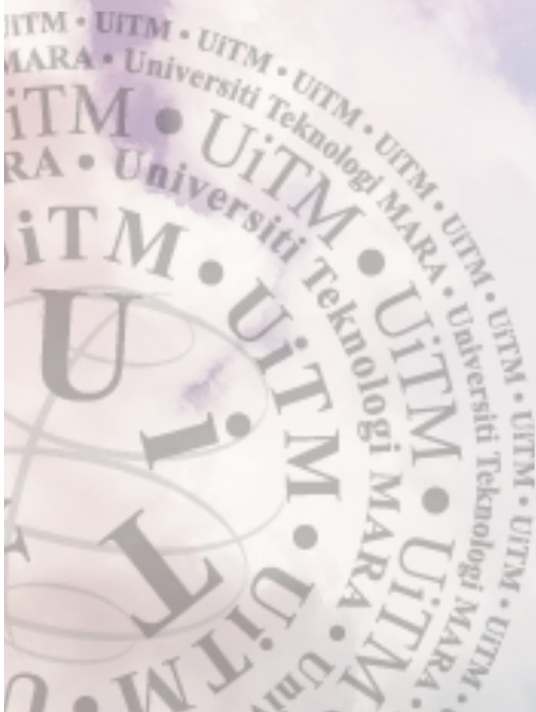

Despite the year being labelled as the year of Covid-19 where everything has been halted or slowed down, this has not dampened the spirit and strength of APB's dear lecturers in being the best of themselves producing their best works in the academic world.

To end this note, this publication is the representation of APB Rembau's dear works. Happy reading.

Yours truly

Don't be tempted by fake cosmetics

August 1, 2020 @ 12:02am

Although every woman wants to look beautiful, one should ask oneself whether using counterfeit cosmetics is worth all these risks? - File pic, for illustration purposes only

LETTERS: If you are a woman, you naturally want to look pretty. Knowing this, many cosmetic companies have been able to make lots of money selling cosmetics either to enhance the eyes, lighten the skin tone or colour the lips so women can look more chic or stylish.

All this beauty is not without a price. Sadly, not everyone can afford it. In a recent study by a group of university students, it was found that some students have resorted to counterfeit cosmetics because they were more affordable than the originals.

More importantly, the students were unable to differentiate between the counterfeit and original cosmetics. Regrettably, too, they decided to buy after an assurance by the salesperson that many customers had bought counterfeits.

Even more dangerous, the salesperson claimed that the counterfeits were as good as the originals. Some buyers were even told that the cosmetic products they bought were originals that were rejected by the manufacturers.

In the study, a majority of the respondents, aged between 21 and 30, were found to be aware of the sale of counterfeit cosmetics in the market. However, they were not aware of the contents of counterfeit cosmetics.

The majority also did not know how to check the authenticity of a cosmetic product and they would buy the product if its quality was close to the original.

The danger is that this attitude would promote the continuous sale of counterfeit cosmetics. Its ingredients could contain toxins that could be harmful to the skin and body.

There is no money back guarantee for such products either. Thus, although every woman wants to look beautiful, one should ask oneself whether using counterfeit cosmetics is worth all these risks?

The next day, Team ELERS 2020 from APB Rembau organized a training session for the students who were selected as the facilitators for 2 ELERS projects; English Dikir and Live Dubbing For Secondary School. The Dikir project was lead by Puan Khairon Nisa while the live dubbing session was organized by Puan Nadiah.

Each project had selected 20 students to be trained by APB lecturers on the contents for the school activities. During the morning session, APB lectures presented their modules and later, during the evening session, the trainers practised their skills in presenting the contents of their module while being monitored by APB lecturers.

After the training sessions, students who had gone through felt pumped up and expressed their eagerness to go to the 5 schools later in March. These were all due to the effort of both trainers and trainees who had worked very hard in developing the modules, training the students and provided them with endless motivation and support.

The ELERS 2020 School Program was scheduled to start in the middle of March and through 4 weeks of training. However, the program was halted later due to the Movement Control Order (MCO) on the 18th of March 2020.
