My Switzerland Trip

I have always had a dream – to travel to Switzerland. This dream finally came true in September this year. I am not fond of doing homework, so I opted to purchase a nine-day, eight-night package from a local travel agency. The package included flights, accommodation, a second-class Swiss travel pass, and a three-hour online consultation. During the online session, the agency's staff introduced us to attractions, explained the itinerary, guided us on downloading necessary applications, purchasing SIM cards, and provided essential information. The package we purchased didn't include a tour guide or meals. After the consultation, the next step was the embarking of our free and easy trip to Switzerland. On September 7th, we boarded an Etihad Airways plane departing from Kuala Lumpur, with a transit in Abu Dhabi, arriving in Switzerland on the morning of the 8th. The accommodation included in this package, the Ibis budget hotel, was quite decent, equipped with a bathroom and toilet in the room, but it was a bit small. We visited various places including Staubbach Falls, Rhine Falls, Mount Titlis, Zurich, Stanserhorn, Blausee, Lake Brienz, and more. It's challenging to provide detailed descriptions of each spot here, but I must mention that Rhine Falls is truly worth a visit; this waterfall is incredibly stunning. Here are some photos of Rhine Falls:

Apart from the Rhine Falls, other attractions in Switzerland are also very beautiful. For instance, the following two photos were taken at Staubbach and Stanserhorn, both equally breathtaking.

Finally, here is some information for those planning to visit Switzerland, I hope that this information can be helpful to them.
