ABSTRACT

The purpose of this study is to examine the effects of work from home towards job satisfaction among employees. This study is to determine the relationship between independent variables and dependent variables, the reliability and validity of the questionnaire and to determine the sample. The independent variables in this study are perceived autonomy, work-family conflict, and telecommuting intensity. The sample of this study is 68 respondents and the researcher used Statistical Package for Social Science (SPSS) software to analyse data collected. The method used in this study was casual research also known as hypothesis testing. The result from this project paper demonstrated two independent variables that have positive and significant relationship, and one independent variable that have negative and non-significant relationship between independent variables and a dependent variable.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First of all, praise to Allah SWT because without his blessings, I am not going to be able to finish this research. Praise Allah for giving me strength and dedication to the completion of this project paper. Next, I would like to thank my advisor, Dr. Nur Melissa Binti Mohammad Faisal Wee, for encouraging me and advising me to finish writing. Without her guidance and motivation, I would not have completed this research paper properly. I am extremely grateful for all her support, guidance and assistance in completing this research throughout the entire process.

Apart from that, I would like to express my gratitude to my family and friends who have helped me to complete this research. They're always guiding and supporting me to finish my project paper. Last but not least, thank you to all the respondents who are willing to spend their time helping answer the questionnaires and make an effort to give honest feedback.
