OBJECTIVES OF FINANCIAL

The four main financial objectives of an enterprise are profitability, liquidity, efficiency, and stability. Profitability is the when the firm is able to earn a profit. This is important if a firmplans to remain viable and provide a return to its owners. Liquidity is when the firm is able to meet its short term financial obligations. The firm must pay attention to its accounts receivables and its inventory at all times. If either one of these accounts get to high, the company may not be able to keep its short term obligation, due to their not being a sufficient amount of cash on hand. Efficiency is when the productivity of the firm utilizes their assets comparative to its revenue andprofits. Stability is the strength and potency of a company's financial state. A firm must make a profit, and remain liquid, all while monitoring its debt and keeping it balanced. Same thing applies here, if the firm's debt-to-equity gets too high, the firm may not be able to meet its obligations and secure financing to grow its company.

1) Revenue Growth Objectives

Increasing revenue is the most basic and fundamental financial objective of any business. Revenue growth comes from an emphasis on sales and marketing activities and is solely concerned with increasing top-line earnings – earnings before expenses. Companies often set revenue goals in terms of percentage increases rather than aiming for specific dollar amounts. An entrepreneur may set an objective of increasing revenue by 20 percent each year for the first five years of a new company's operations, for example.

2) Profit Margins and Bottom-Line Earnings

Profit objectives are a bit more sophisticated than revenue growth goals. Any money left over from sales revenue after all expenses have been paid is considered profit. Profit, or bottom-line earnings, can be used in a number of ways, including investing it back into the business for expansion and distributing it among employees in a profit-sharing arrangement. Profit goals are concerned first with revenue, then with costs. Keeping costs low by finding and building relationships with reliable suppliers, designing operations with an eye toward lean efficiency and taking advantage of economies of scale, to name a few methods, can leave you with more money after paying all of your bills.

3) Financial Sustainability in Times of Turmoil

At certain times, companies or brands may be primarily concerned with basic economic survival. Retrenching is a marketing technique, based on a financial objective – that attempts to keep a brand alive and keep current revenue and profit levels from falling any further during the decline stage of the product/brand life cycle.Companies may be concerned with financial sustainability during periods of economic turmoil, as well. Common financial objectives for survival include collecting on all outstanding debts on time and in full, de-leveraging by paying off debt and keeping income levels consistent.

4) Return on Investment

Return on Investment is a financial ratio applied to capital expenditures. ROI can be applied to two basic scenarios. First, ROI is concerned with the return generated by investments in real property and productive equipment. Business owners want to make sure that the buildings, machinery and other equipment they buy generates sufficient revenue and profit to justify the purchase cost. Secondly, ROI applies to investments in stocks, bonds and other investment instruments. The same principle applies to these investments, but there is generally no physical, productive asset used to generate a return. Instead, ROI for investment products is calculated by comparing the dividends, interest and capital gains realized from investments by the cost of the investment and the opportunity cost of forgoing alternative investments.

IMPORTANT OF FINANCIAL PLANNING

It is important to plan finances in order to reap long term benefits through the assets in hand. The investments that one makes are structured properly, and managed by professionals through financial planning. Every decision regarding our finances can be monitored if a proper plan is devised in advance. The following points explain why financial planning is important.

- Cash Flow: Financial planning helps in increasing cash flow as well as monitoring the spending pattern. The cash flow is increased by undertaking measures such as tax planning, prudent spending, and careful budgeting.

- 3) Income: It is possible to manage income effectively through planning. Managing income helps in segregating it into tax payments, other monthly expenditures, and savings.
- 4) Financial Understanding: The financial planning process helps gain an understanding about the current financial position. Adjustments in an investment plan or evaluating a retirement scheme becomes easy for an individual with financial understanding.
- 5) Savings: It is good to have investments with high liquidity. These investments, owing to their liquidity, can be utilized in times of emergency and for educational purposes.
- 6) Investment: A proper financial plan that considers the income and expenditure of a person helps in choosing the right investment policy. It enables the person to reach the set goals.
- 7) Standard of Living: The savings created by through planning, come to the rescue in difficult times. Death of the bread winner in a family affects the standard of living to a great extent. A proper financial plan acts as a guard in such situations, and enables the family to survive hard times.
