ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Praise to the Lord for giving me the strength to get through the course of Bachelor of Finance Programme to complete this thesis.

I would like to express my sincere gratitude to my advisor Madam Rapheedah Musneh for her the continuous support, for her patience, motivation, and immense knowledge. Her guidance helped me in all the time of research and writing of this thesis. I could not have imagined having a better advisor to supervise me.

My gratitude wishes goes to my all dearest friends especially Melissa Tommie Lajawai, Nabila Binti Wahab and Jaciellia Robinson whose have been through the ups and downs with me throughout completing this thesis. I also want to express my gratitude to my seniors, Ahmad Fauze Abdul Hamit and Nurziya Binti Muzzawer for their help and guidance in completing this thesis.

Last but not least, I would like to thank my family especially my parents and to my brothers and sister for supporting me spiritually and financially throughout writing this thesis and my life in general.

ABSTRACT

Recently, there is an evolution of finance theory that the return can be measured by investor behaviour. According to few researchers, trading volume is can be the best proxy in predicting the investor behaviour. Therefore, this study will use trading volume as an indicator of the price movement in the market. In addition, this study will also identify whether there exists long run relationship between trading volume. A panel data was performed by using monthly stock prices and volume traded data of Top Ten listed Company in Bursa Malaysia for the years 2006 until 2012. It was found that trading volume and stock return in Malaysia is significant. However, it was found that there is negative relationship between trading volume and stock return in Malaysia plus long-run relationship does exists between the two variables. Moreover, this study discovered that trading volume is causing the stock return.
