DR MANUEL PINUELA

CULTIVO

It was at Imperial where he developed Freevolt, a patented wireless charging technology capable of recharging batteries from energy from mobile phones and other sources. But, as his PhD came to an end, he wasn't sure what to do next. He had a few options including returning to America or selling to investors.

LEWIS HORNBY

JELLY DROPS

Jelly Drops have great potential. We've got interest from many others, including Parkinson's disease patients undergoing chemotherapy. Half of our 40,000 waiting list is American. To fulfil demand and enter new markets, manufacturing will be scaled up this year.
