ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First of all, I extend my sincere appreciation to everyone involved in organizing the industrial training program, particularly Madam Saiyidah Raffanah Binti Basri and Sir Muhamad Syukrie Bin Haji Abu Talib, our Faculty Representative which took place from August 14th to September 22nd.

Next, I would like to convey my thanks to Mr. William, the Estate Manager at Karabungan Estate, Sarawak Oil Palms Bhd, who served as my supervisor during the training period. His guidance and teachings were invaluable, and I am grateful for the support provided by the assistant managers and other staff members at SOP Karabungan. Their kindness and willingness to share their knowledge significantly contributed to making my six weeks of training a truly enriching experience. I want to express my gratitude to all of them for their assistance and support.

INTRODUCTION TO INDUSTRIAL TRAINING

Throughout our industrial training program, we were assigned placements in both government agencies and private sectors. I had the privilege of undergoing my training at Sarawak Oil Palm Bhd, specifically at Karabungan Estate, which falls under the private sector. The purpose of this report is to offer a comprehensive overview of my industrial training experience at SOP Karabungan, highlighting the knowledge and skills acquired during this period.

I actively engaged in various facets of plantation management throughout the training duration, ranging from cultivation to harvesting. This hands-on involvement provided me with invaluable insights into the workings of the oil palm industry. My experience at Karabungan Estate allowed me to immerse myself fully in the operational aspects of the plantation.

Under the guidance of trained assistant, I actively participated in practical exercises that deepened my understanding of the private sector's crucial role in the oil palm industry. This program was instrumental in equipping me with practical knowledge and skills that are essential for a comprehensive grasp of the dynamics

ORGANIZATION BACKGROUND

Organization Name: Sarawak Oil Palm Bhd
