ABSTRACT

This final project is about proposed an interior design scheme a Chinese restaurant at Lot 725, Sek 4, Daerah Timur Laut, Georgetown, Pulau Pinang for the Ministry of Culture, Arts and Tourism Malaysia.

This proposal for Penang Chinese Restaurant deals with the initial brief of Penang tourist development for the purpose of enhancing the tourist attraction of the historic and multi-religious city. The restaurant proposal is designed to create an environment where people interact through Chinese food and lifestyles. It also can show the truly identity of Penang which is largest ethnic group in this state.

Restaurant based on a cultural identity has always been an interesting subject for a design project. This is because it has an element of history, custom, beliefs and unique symbolic representation of the particular race and origin besides other important commercial factors.

INTRODUCTION

1.0 Introduction

In every country, and to some extent, in every state or town we expect to stumble upon a special place that we hold dear and grow to cherish. Penang “Pearl of the Orient”, the gem of Malaysia is one of these special places. Its cover area of 285 square kilometers for the whole island and had population of about just over half million for the whole island.

The state are divided into two districts of its major town, which are Georgetown and Seberang Perai (Province Wellesley), cover area of 48 kilometres wide. The famous island serves as a spine to this country, and with it rows of commercial shop, provides the familiar hubbub that the country is known for. Heritage culture and building in Penang have become among the most valued assets in Malaysia and these buildings have been preserved to relish the history that they once behold.

A trip to Penang always gives the nostalgic feeling of going down memory lane, revisiting the times of yore. The island’s rustic old buildings and monuments pervade a sense of reflection and reverence of its illustrious heritage trails.
