

KUALA LUMPUR'S MOORISH ARCHITECTURE

PTAR

NA
380
.J39
1989

0
4
7

TABLE OF CONTENTS

FOREWORD

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

INTRODUCTION

CHAPTER 1

1.1 Moorish architecture

- def -

1.2 Historical background

1.2.1 Moorish architecture in Spain

1.2.2 Moorish architecture in India

1.2.3 Moorish architecture in Malaysia

CHAPTER 2

2.1 Characteristics of Moorish architecture

2.1.1 Arches

2.1.2 Squinches

2.1.3 Domes

2.1.4 Minarets, towers and turrets

CHAPTER 3

- 3.1 Kuala Lumpur - A Historical Background
- 3.2 How It Came To Kuala Lumpur
- 3.3 Examples of Buildings in Kuala Lumpur
  - 3.3.1 Masjid Jamek
  - 3.3.2 Bangunan Sultan Abdul Samad
  - 3.3.3 Information Centre
  - 3.3.4 Selangor Public Works Department
  - 3.3.5 Kuala Lumpur Railway Station

CHAPTER 4

Case Study - Masjid Jamek

- 4.1 Concept of a Mosque
- 4.2 The Origin and Meaning of the word 'Masjid'
- 4.3 The First Masjid in the World
- 4.4 Influences in the Construction of Mosque
  - (i) Local and traditional influences
  - (ii) Outside influences
- 4.5 Masjid Jamek
  - 4.5.1 Historical background

CHAPTER 5

- 5.1 Preservation and Conservations of Masjid Jamek
- 5.2 Why It Should Be Preserved

This Final Studies entitled:

KUALA LUMPUR'S MOORISH ARCHITECTURE

was undertaken and completed as a requirement to obtain the Diploma of Architecture from the Mara Institute of Technology, Shah Alam, Selangor, by:

Jawahir b. Kamarudin

Diploma in Architecture

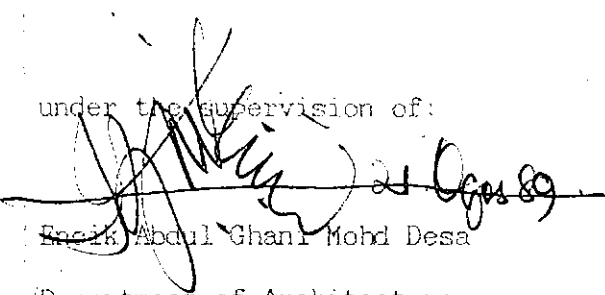

ITM Shah Alam

Selangor.

Year 1988/1989

---

under the supervision of:

Enzik Abdul Ghani Mohd Desa

Department of Architecture

ITM Shah Alam

Selangor.

---

ABSTRACT

-----

This research has been done to observe the elements present in Kuala Lumpur. It is basically to compare the elements which are characteristics of Moorish architecture and to see to what extent this characteristic have been use in the buildings.

So, in the earlier part of the final studies, characteristics have been listed out and towards the end are examples of building with some of the characteristic mentioned. The building have influenced the shape and quality of Kuala Lumpur as it grows and develops.