CHAPTER 1.0 INTRODUCTION

1.1 INTRODUCTION

This report is the result of study and data collection to assist in the design of the proposed project at the end of Laundry Room And Cafe. Students are required to prepare a comprehensive design scheme based on the research issues, the scope of client requirements and observations that are sensitive to particular issues or problems that exist in the architectural design process Laundry Room And Cafe. This project is to provide a new design for the Laundry Room Cafe And in addition to creating a practical and new concepts to customers by providing quality services.

The selection of this project is to highlight the new design for the Laundry Room And Cafe is shaded by the natives. Development of laundry center in Malaysia is very exciting and profitable. Therefore, not surprising if we find the center of laundry now so many that grow like mushrooms after rain. It exists wherever the opportunity to see, like home stores, in shopping malls, in lots of shops, lots of office or at home. Of course each has a central laundry cleaning the same basic method, but it is up to us to vary the service and the best method for customer satisfaction. In general, laundry can be classified based on the services provided and the target visitors.

This project is about a combination of two different space function and activity which is a laundry services area and cafe area with a touch of a new type of services to occupy the hectic urban life where by the customer can experience a new fast services. its a solution for people demands a more flexible way of life. With expensive attire and the need for a more sophisticated care, the role of
