ABSTRACT

Feasibility study for platform migration will help Johnson & Johnson Vision Care (Malaysia) to decide go/not go decision for the new project based on the feasibility study result. Objectives of this study are to identify the requirement and determine the impact for platform migration. This study used observation, document review and risk assessment method to address the migration plan. Study consists of technical, operational, and cost-benefit analysis based on specific area need to cater. Technical feasibility helps to identify the requirement for hardware and software aspect for the new platform. Cost-benefit feasibility cater for tangible and intangible benefit when change the platform. Operational feasibility determines the impact for business operational process in order to identify is there any changes to current business process. These feasibility study result will help organization to use it as a benchmark before they decide to change or upgrade their current platform.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Praise to Allah, the Most Gracious and Most Merciful Lord of His Blessings.

Foremost, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to my supervisor, Dr Jasber Kaur (Dr.) A/P Gian Singh for support and advice. My sincere thanks also goes to my colleague at Johnson & Johnson Vision Care (JJVC). They have helped me a lot especially to understand the business process. Besides my colleague, I would like to thank the rest of my friend for their time that spends with me to share their experience and opinion on the thesis journey. Last but not least, I would like to thank my beloved family especially my parent, for their continuous understanding and supporting.
