

When I'm Gone

When I'm gone, I won't come back again
I know it's like blood stop running through your vein
I know it's like your consciousness has gone and you would faint
I know it's like the sun starts hiding and it's going to rain
And I know it's like the world is no longer beautiful but dull and plain
But time can heal your pain
And you'll be happy again
As long as you don't go down memory lane
As long as you keep me out of your brain
And throw everything of me into the drain
Never let your days be filled with dismay
The memories will fade away
The feelings will slowly die and decay
When comes the day
I'll be gone and walk away
I will have no words to say but a thin smile to display
I'm not gold for you to keep
As I've been treated like something cheap
Life must go on, that's all I wanna say
So never let your heart stray
Looking for fragments of old memories
Trying to put them together piece by piece
As this won't let you in peace
But will only rekindle your miseries
The agony of losing someone won't cease
So please, do only this:
Our past, you don't reminisce
Our love, you don't ever miss
When I'm gone, I'm all gone
And it means I'm done and all done...
