ABSTRACT

This study validates the effect of user's motivation factor on fake news sharing in social media during covid-19 endemic. Five constructs from Users and Gratification Theory namely altruism, entertainment, socialisation, self-promotion and instant news sharing was used in this study. Result from an online survey, with data collected in two months periods during endemic phase. 277 respondents were involved in this study and the findings supported the theoretical model. Particularly the researcher found that entertainment and instant news sharing predicted fake news sharing related to COVID-19 endemic among social media users in Malaysia. Specifically, entertainment was the strongest predictor to fake news sharing behaviour related to COVID-19, followed by instant news sharing. On the contrary, another three variables namely altruism, socialisation and self-promotion had no association with fake news sharing on COVID-19 endemic. UGT was tested using the primary data and producing 35% of the variance in fake news sharing ( $R^2 = 0.41$ ). The finding of this study provides the practical implication to related parties like policy makers (government) in order to set up the guidelines to avoid fake news sharing among citizens and give some enlightenment on how the policy content could be crafted in building and managing the situation.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

With the words "Bismillah," I thank God for His generosity and grace, which allowed me to finish this Master's thesis. Thank you to, Associate Professor Dr. Abdul Rauf Ridzuan, Dr. Nur Nasliza Arina Mohamad Nasir and Dr. Fahmi Zaidi Abdul Razak for their guidance, inspiration, and advice in completing this Master's thesis. It took less than a year to complete this master's thesis, but many hurdles were embraced.

Additionally, I want to thank my three beloved children, Wan Hanna Raisya, Wan Hanni Raisya, and Wan Haneem Raisya, for their continuous prayers and understanding of their busy father. I appreciate my siblings praying for my success, Wan Haslinda, Wan Hasfaizullah, Wan Hasrul Hafiz, and Wan Hashridz Daniel. Thanks to Nur Aulia Fahada Misaridin, Raja Nurul Hafizah Raja Ismail and Wan Nur Ainna Waheda Rozali, for greatly assisting throughout this journey and providing support when things got tough.

Finally, I dedicate this thesis to my late, incredibly dear parents for having the vision and drive to educate me. I dedicate this victory to the two of you and also not to mention my special one Nur Syafira Nasuha Mohd Zuki for sticking with me through the ups and downs of this journey. Alhamdulillah.
