ABSTRACT

Share price is one of the measurements for investor to identify the profit of the company or the profit of the bank, but in this study the researcher want to identify the effect of Public Bank share price to the bank profitability in Malaysia. This study is tries to analyse the relationships between interest rate, exchange rate, inflation rate, money supply and Earnings per share on the Public Bank share price and has being used time series data from January 2009 to May 2018 which is around 111 observations. Moreover, it also will show the relationship of the company share price with its factors or variables. However, it cover only the Public Bank share price because this study want to focus more on this bank stocks to get more precise result. Furthermore, the purpose of this research is to determine the significant factors toward the Public Bank share price.
