ACKNOWLEDGMENT

First of all, we would like to praise the Almighty Allah SWT for giving the blessing us of strength, patient and guidance to complete this research study even though along the way we encountered with so many obstacles and difficulties apart from happiness.

After that, we would like to express our sincere thanks to our lecturer, Mr. Kuldip Singh for his support and knowledge as well as their kindness in examining and evaluating the research proposal, besides his invaluable advices to guide us to right path while undertaking this proposal.

We also would like to gratitude Madam Noor Fadhleen Binti Mahmud, our advisor for her evaluations and comments, which we considered those were very meaningful to us.

Apart from that, we also like to thank our beloved parents for their love and encouragement and not forgetting our classmates and friends. As for our respondents, thank you for answering the questionnaires to the best of your knowledge. Without all these people, we won't be able to complete this research within the time frame. For those names that are not listed here, you are still in our heart.

1.0 Introduction

The National Integrity Plan is an integrity plan that evolved from the aspirations of our people and our country. It has been formulated in accordance with our own mould with Malaysians of all ethnic and religious groups as its stakeholders. The plan takes into account the views and suggestions presented at a series of national seminars, involving representatives from almost all sectors of the society. Thus the National Integrity Plan (NIP) reflects the hopes and aspiration of both the leadership and the people.

In order to achieve its objectives, the National Integrity Plan (NIP) has identified five priorities known as target 2008. To ensure effectively reduce corruption, malpractices and abuse of power. It is also to increase efficiency of the public delivery system and overcome bureaucratic red tape. Another objective is to enhance corporate governance and business ethics. Furthermore the National Integrity Plan objectives are to strengthen the family institution and to improve the quality of life and people's well being.

The overall objective of the NIP is to realise the aspirations of Vision 2020, that is, to become a fully developed country and? To establish a fully moral and ethical society whose citizens are strong in religious and spiritual values and imbued with the highest ethical standards. The specific objectives of the NIP are as follows, giving direction and guidance to various sectors so that they will work together to build a united, harmonious, moral and ethical society, raising the level

2.0 Literature Review

2.1 Introduction

The National Integrity Plan (NIP) is predicated upon the spirit and principles of the Federal Constitution, which sees Malaysia ethnic and religious diversity as an asset that should be taken advantage of. The plan also incorporates the philosophy and principles of Rukun Negara, which aims at building a united, just, democratic, liberal, and progressive society. At the same time, the NIP also embodies the philosophy and challenges of Vision 2020 that aims at transforming Malaysia into a fully developed nation in its own mould by the year 2020. As a plan that evolves out of the people aspirations and dedicated to improve their well-being, the NIP reflects the specific attributes of our country and people. It also takes cognizance of the developments taking place at the international level, the experiences of other countries as well as the impact of globalisation. In short, the NIP is an extension and application of the philosophy, principles and objectives that the Federal Constitution, the Rukun Negara as well as several preceding strategic policies aspired to achieve. It also takes into account new developments and challenges around us.
